You never get tired of hearing a cheerful person talk.

It always seems cold when a man's pocketbook gets down to 0.

Did you ever see an alarm clock that had a pleasant tone to its ring?

The man who eats the boarding house hash is the real ultimate consumer.

One-half the world don't think the other half has any business living.

We like to see other people get up in the world if they take us with them.

The real hero is the one who goes through the world without hurting anyone.

There are some few virtues to a boarding house. One is, patrons never get the gout.

Dignity is a way we have of making people believe we are what they know we ain't.

Sometimes a man moves slowly because he takes time to scatter a little sunshine as he goes.

Kisses are about as near nothing as you can get. Lots of girls are awfully good for nothing.

Gossip is when a woman tells her neighbors what one of her husband's friends has told him.

The girl who never hears what the flirt says to her is perfectly capable of taking care of herself.

Some of our early impressions that we remember the most distinctly were not made on the mind.

Your love for your neighbor is less likely to suffer a set back if you keep your line fence well braced.

Older people always expect youngsters to be an improvement upon what they were themselves when children.

Some reformers want to make the world better so that there won't be so many temptations for them to yield to.

The young man who can't travel fast enough to suit himself quite frequently gets some assistance from the hurry-up wagon.

Some of our brightest men are those who went to college in youth, so don't get discouraged if your parents insist on educating you.

Some women like religion because they can believe in it without their husbands asking them a lot of perplexing questions about it.

Isn't it funny that the man who will gracefully resign his seat to a lady on a street car will try to hold down two double seats on a railway train.

Disease germs are carried in paper currency, so we are told, but you wouldn't believe it to see the way it brings a healthy bloom to the face of most any recipient.

The young man who uses perfumed stationery and plasters his hair down with vaseline and ambergris water will be complaining some day because the world didn't give him a chance.

Roosevelt is said to have built up his reputation as a moralist by merely repeating in a more emphatic way moral truths that have come down through the ages. Take his famous anti-race suicide propaganda, for instance. There is Washington, distinguished as the Father of His Country.

WOULD RECLAIM LOW LANDS

EDWARDS ASKS GOVERNMENT AID FOR GEORGIA AND FLORIDA.

Washington, Feb. 11.—In the house Friday during the debate on the agricultural appropriation bill, Representative C. G. Edwards, of Georgia, spoke on the importance of drainage of swamp lands located in the south. He offered the following amendment as a substitute for the paragraph beginning "drainage investigation":

"To enable the secretary of agriculture to locate, survey, investigate and report upon the drainage of swamp and other wet lands in the United States, with a view of determining what of such lands are susceptible of drainage, and at what cost per acre, the value and effect of drainage on such lands with respect to the public health and agricultural production, together with reports on existing legislation of the different states on the subject of drainage and operations thereunder; foreign drainage policies and their results, and the relation of the federal government to local and state authorities and legislation on drainage; and to prepare plans for the removal of surplus waters by drainage and for the preparation, printing, illustration and distribution of reports and bulletins on drainage, including rent and the employment of labor in the city of Washington and elsewhere, and all necessary expenses, $250,000."

Representative Edwards said: "For several years I have been deeply interested in the subject of drainage. I have given it considerable study and attention since I have been in congress. I do not believe there is any subject which deserves greater consideration by congress than legislation looking to the drainage of the swamp lands of the country."

"Georgia has $2,700,000 acres of swamp and overflowed lands that are susceptible of improvement and reclamation, a great portion of which are in the district that I have the honor to represent. Most of this land is very fertile, and would be unusually productive and profitable if it were drained and put in condition that it could be cultivated. In its present condition—swampy and wet—it is practically worthless. In many cases it is a nuisance, because, without question, it depreciates the value of the adjoining and surrounding land of a better character, and is conducive of malaria. Figuring that this land is worth $1 per acre, which is a reasonable valuation for it in its present condition, remembering that it is producing nothing of the world's wealth, with a comparatively small expenditure per acre, this vast amount of land, if properly drained, would be worth at least $20 per acre, which would mean $54,000,000 in valuation, as against $2,700,000, showing an increase of $51,300,000, to say nothing of the agricultural production every year that would result to the state of Georgia. What I have said with regard to Georgia's swamp lands applies with equal force to the wet lands in all of the other states of the Union, and I imagine that the increase in value would be in about the same proportion.

"The government is committed to the project of irrigating the arid lands of the west. I do not propose to discuss the wisdom of the legislation through which the government has become committed to the irrigation of the arid lands, but I do think that there is ample precedent for the government to undertake to drain the swamp and wet lands of the country."

"Since I have been in congress I have gotten through the department of agriculture a preliminary drainage examination of Liberty, Bryan and McIntosh counties, and a survey of Effingham county is soon to be made in Georgia. In taking the matter up with a view of distributing to the people residing in those counties copies of the surveys, I found that there is no provision under which the reports of the drainage surveys can be printed for distribution. I have had a great number of requests from citizens in the district that I represent for copies of the surveys of the counties that I have just named, and in each case where copies have been furnished they have been typewritten copies, entailing an immense amount of work and great delay. If we are to provide for this important work of drainage investigation, we should do it in a way that will be effective."

"Chatham county, Georgia, at its own expense, has been draining the lands of that county until today it has a splendid system of drainage. The result has been that the public health has been wonderfully improved, the death rate materially reduced, and thousands of acres of fertile land have been reclaimed and made fit to be cultivated. This has been made possible through the help and push the great city of Savannah has given the movement, in order that the health of its citizens may not be endangered. Through such measures, in properly looking after her sanitary conditions, Savannah is one of the cleanest, most healthy, beautiful and progressive cities in the whole country, while Chatham's farm lands are of the best and 'malaria' is a word seldom heard in that section, and I hope will be entirely forgotten when Chatham's great drainage scheme has been completed."

"With such a splendid object lesson as to the effect of drainage in Chatham county, I am at a loss to understand why the Georgia legislature does not proceed to enact proper drainage legislation and proceed upon a comprehensive and effective plan with this important work, in order that national aid might be invoked. I cannot understand, either, why congress does not give more encouragement to this great work, which, if carried out in all of the states, would reclaim millions of acres of fertile land and would improve the public health of every state in the Union and would tend to materially reduce the death rate from malaria and kindred causes, from one end of the country to the other, to say nothing of the billions of dollars that would be added to the nation's wealth in increased values and through agricultural productions upon lands that are now practically waste, worthless and unproductive."

I could not take the greasy mixture, and when our druggist told me that VINOL contained not only tonic iron but all the medicinal properties of Cod Liver Oil without the grease or oil or bad taste, I made up my mind that was the medicine for me. City and County

Greene Johnston, Jr., of Tallahassee, Fla., is visiting the family of his father for a few days.

Hon. R. Simmons returned this morning from a business trip of several days at Pelham and Hawkinsville.

Mrs. W. C. Raines returned Thursday from a ten-days' visit with her sister, Mrs. DeLoach, at Claxton.

Mr. L. M. Mikell, of Trappell, Mikell & Co., is in Baltimore and New York for ten days, selecting goods for the spring trade.

Mr. A. T. Richburg, of the Simmons Company's force, returned Friday from his home in North Carolina, where he was called on business for a week.

Mr. Harmon Proctor, of Scarborough, has been a visitor to the city for several days in attendance upon his mother, who is very low and not expected to live.

Mrs. D. C. Proctor, whose illness was mentioned in these columns last week, is still alive, though at the point of death and not expected to survive through the day.

Among the improvements contemplated by the city council during the present year is the erection of a city hall. Plans are now being drawn for a building on the lot owned by the city near the court house square.

In order to handle the immense fertilizer business passing over its line, the Central railway has been put to the necessity of operating double-header freight trains. Two engines pulling a train is a common occurrence now.

Mrs. H. H. Hurst arrived last Thursday from Talladega, Ala., and joined Mr. Hurst, who has been here for several weeks in the insurance business. They contemplate making Statesboro their permanent home.

The stone work having been completed on the Bank of Statesboro building, the brick work is now going rapidly forward. The front of the building is indeed a handsome one, the massive stone columns and the white stone trimming having a pleasing effect.

The members of the Baraca class of the Baptist church complimented their lady friends of the Phila-thea class last evening with a valentine party. A banquet was served at the new Statesboro restaurant, and the evening was most delightfully spent.

Attention is invited to the announcement of the Porter-Kendrick Co. on another page. This firm, which succeeds Porter, Franklin & Co., is one of the city's leading grocery companies, and Messrs. Porter and Kendrick will give courteous treatment to the public.

Messrs. Homer Simmons and L. C. Mann left Thursday for New York for the purpose of selecting spring goods for the Simmons Co.'s trade. Mr. Simmons is no longer associated with the company, but on account of his familiarity with the trade was employed for this special trip.

"Electric Bill" has been in Statesboro again. He hit the city Saturday afternoon, remained a few hours, sold a large number of cheap razors and fountain pens, and then hit the grid. He also offered his famous "electric belts," but found no purchasers, the demand for belts having been satisfied in this section fifteen years ago, when some gentleman sold over a hundred of the same belts. Statesboro people are educated now; they won't bite at anything but razors, fountain pens and cheap jewelry.

The cause of his death was consumption. Mr. Lee had been an invalid for a long time, and had only recently gone to a consumptive sanitarium near Atlanta for treatment. Failing to receive benefit he returned home Saturday, his death following the next day.

Valentine Party at Clitto.

Misses Tarver and Lindsey entertained Monday evening with a valentine party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Franklin, near Clitto. The parlor and dining hall were beautifully decorated with sweet jessamines, Johnquills and hearts. Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served.

In the drawing and guessing contest Miss Essie Brown won the prize, a beautiful valentine.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Franklin, Misses Myrtle Tarver, Belle Lindsey, Essie Brown, Eddie Porter, Ethel Driggers, Alma Stacy, Lizzie Sue Lindsey, Zada Waters, Minnie Reid Beasley and Essie Hart. Messrs. Walter Brown, A. C. Try for Hundred Bushels.

MR. EDITOR:
Will you allow a few lines for encouragement to the corn contestants? We must all put in for a hundred bushels this year—nothing short of that will get the prize.

I have my land prepared, and I don't intend the 48th shall drag this year. I am in to beat the Laston and Briar Patch. If I can make the hundred bushels I will invite brother Hoke Smith down to see it measured, as he advocates energy and improvements on the farm. Let the contestants get up a little sooner and keep the pigs and chickens out of their corn and there won't be so many excuses to offer for failure to win the prize. Every good man ought to join the corn contest; it is better to have corn to sell than to buy it.

Let me speak a word against whiskey, the greatest evil in our country. Think of it, seven murder cases for next court all on account of whiskey. We don't need it in our business.

I ask some man from every district to write for the TIMES and make our contest interesting.

CHILDREN DIE FROM POISON

TWO IN EMANUEL COUNTY HAVE SAD ENDING.

Swainsboro, Ga., Feb. 8.—The remains of little Ruth Edensfield, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Edensfield, who died yesterday, were interred today at Stillmore.

The circumstances surrounding the death of this child were exceedingly sad. On Sunday Ruth, with some other children, went up to her grandfather's, E. A. Edensfield's, and, child-like, they were making excursions about the place, hunting treasure covers. They came upon a medicine chest and, investigating its contents, came across a bottle of belladonna, which little Ruth drank.

When it was discovered that she had taken poison, a doctor was summoned and, although everything was done that medical skill could suggest, the little girl passed away Monday afternoon. Ruth was a very attractive child, 8 years of age. She was a general favorite at Stillmore.

Another very tragic death was that last night of little Flora Hayes, 18-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hayes, which occurred at the home of Mrs. Hayes' father, John Hall, last night, about 8 o'clock. The child was in apparent good health and was playing in the yard with her little brother and sister when suddenly the little boy ran in and told his mother that Flora had gone to sleep standing up.

It was discovered that she had eaten a quantity of yellow jessamine blossoms, which were blossoming in the yard. A physician was called in, but nothing could be done to save the little one's life.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes have recently come here from Carrabelle, Fla., where Mr. Hayes was engaged in the turpentine and saw mill business.

It is rather a sad coincidence that two children in this county should die within a few hours of each other, one from the effects of similar poison from the flower which is used to make this medicine.

SOMEONE AFTER TOM WATSON

THOMSON, Ga., February 17.—Thomas E. Watson has offered a reward of $500 for the discovery and arrest of men said to be lurking around his home here for the purpose of doing him bodily harm.

Twenty armed men have been on guard at the Watson residence for the last twenty-four hours. A large posse of men besides has been beating through the woods up and down the tracks of the Georgia railroad in a thrilling man hunt.

As a result four suspicious persons were detained today pending the investigation Mr. Watson has instituted in the belief that three or four men are lurking about his premises with the purpose of doing him harm.

Mr. Watson is firmly convinced that his life is in danger on account of his writings. Two nights ago Mrs. Alice Lytle, managing editor of the Jeffersonian, was passing the roadway that leads from Mr. Watson's residence in the outskirts of Thomson to his publishing house.

She heard a rustling noise in a group of bushes, and as there was no wind to cause the noise she began to inspect the place. She was greatly startled to see three strange men scurrying along and crouching behind the bushes.

Mrs. Lytle lost no time in reporting her discovery. Town Marshal Thomas F. Ivey was notified and Major Charles McGregor, of Warrenton, Mr. Watson's lifelong friend and protector, was summoned.

Last night three men again were seen in the bushes near the home of Mr. Watson about dark. These men answered the descriptions of the men Mrs. Lytle had seen. One of them was found hiding in a swamp by Night Marshal Jesse Montfrier. The officers fired at the man at a distance of forty yards, but he made his escape in the swamp.

Mr. Watson and Sheriff Horace Clary then called upon Marshal

IS PLAYING HYPOCRITE. TO MOVE STATE CAPITAL.

SENATOR BORAH SAYS NORTH HATES NEGROES.

Washington, Feb. 16.—That prejudice against the negro is just as intense in the north as in the south, and that the north plays the hypocrite in its contentions to the contrary, was boldly asserted in the senate today by a republican senator.

The speaker was Senator Borah of Idaho. His declarations regarding the negro were made at the close of a prolonged speech in opposition to the Sutherland amendment to the senate resolution providing for the election by senators by popular vote. That amendment would have the effect of giving congress control of senatorial elections.

The Idaho senator's pronouncement on the race question was made in response to the recent assertion of Senator Root that without the Sutherland provision the resolution would deprive the southern negroes of federal protection in the exercise of the franchise. Mr. Borah dissented from the New York senator's view, and in doing so used language which elicited congratulations from many senators.

Mr. Borah contended that as the resolution stands, notwithstanding it gives the state legislatures control of senatorial elections, congress still would have the right to interfere protection of any citizen whose right of franchise had been interfered with.

The Idaho senator expressed deep regret that the race question had been brought into the controversy, and asserted that its introduction was intended only to imperil the resolution.

"I wonder how long the north is going to play the hypocrite and the moral coward on this question," said Mr. Borah, and added that that section always had assumed more wisdom and more tolerance in dealing with this problem than had been displayed elsewhere. He insisted that a call of the roll of the northern states in which there is any appreciable number of negroes would demonstrate that the north had not dealt more leniently with the negro than other sections.

"The northern states have exhibited the same race prejudice that has been shown elsewhere," he asserted. In the north we burn the negro at the stake, and there, as in other sections, we have our race wars. We push our negroes to the outer edge of the industrial world. We exhibit the same prejudices, the same weaknesses, the same intolerance that is apparent in the southland."

Mr. Borah declared that if congress had power, under the existing provision of the constitution, giving congressional control over senatorial elections, it should be exercised.

"If that right exists, the north has the greater obligation under it because it makes claim to it," he said. "We assert the power, but we admit that we haven't the moral courage to exercise it."

For himself he denied the existence of any such power, and said that he resented such a position because of the position in which congress was placed by it.

Concluding, he said: "The negro has been used as a foot ball about as long as our own sense of decency and his developing intelligence will permit. We should no longer mistreat him, but we should have the courage to inform him as to the real situation. It does not benefit him to make him the subject of our sophomoric rhetoric. The colored race has advanced to the point

TO MOVE STATE CAPITAL.

MACON MAN SAYS IT WILL BE DONE IN FIVE YEARS.

Savannah, Feb. 17.—Contradicting Henry W. Grady's story of the North Georgian who died and whose interment called for a contribution of woods and metals from every section of the Union but the south, Harry Stillwell Edwards, postmaster at Macon, and one of the state's gifted literary men, has visions of the state capital in Macon constructed of all Georgia products with the hills and granite beds of North Georgia the sole contributors of every material necessary to erect a state house which would be the pride of the people. Mr. Edwards says every Georgian has buried somewhere in his mind a plan with reference to the proper site for the state capital, and he only pleads guilty to the same weakness, which, he says, has caused thousands of Georgians over the state to enter with his city in the fight to get the capital at the logical site.

"In five years' time," says Mr. Edwards, "Macon will land the capital if the present fight is continued. I have recently been over different parts of the state, and while I have done no active campaigning for the removal of the capital, as a matter of interest I inquired and did not fail to find removal sentiment everywhere."

Mr. Edwards springs a brand new one when he says Atlanta would be benefited by the removal of the capital. He says it would put that city on a square business basis and take away from Atlanta which is a detriment to the growth of a city. Politics and city building are not well mixed, says the Macon postmaster. The examples of Albany, N. Y., Harrisburg, Pa., Montgomery, Ala., Baton Rouge, La., all show that politics cannot make a city, and the leading cities of the country are proof that business makes the city in the first instance. Atlanta, he says, was a great city before it got the capital.

That Macon has the chance to show the genuineness of her ex-where we well may dispense with the perennial distribution of soothing syrup and give them solid food in the way of facts. We should tell him the truth and conceal nothing.

"The negro is beginning to realize that the white man of the north is of the same race as the white man of the south, and that in his blood is the virus of domination and power. He should know that while his slave chains have been broken, the chains of industry are being forged around him and will continue to hold him unless he himself break them."

This badge was placed upon him by his Maker, and it can be removed only by the negro himself, with the aid of those who have the courage to tell him the truth, which is that we have the power to guarantee to him the equal protection of the law and to protect him against discrimination. To attempt anything more would be ruinous to the colored man and demoralizing to the whole political body. He must work out the problem under the constitution.

"When the exigencies of debate are over it will be found that no measure will be offered in the senate to protect any supposed right of the colored man anywhere. If those who are interested will turn to the constitution they will find the one universal rule of equality, the only rule to be applied to the negro, and the only rule under which he can legislate. If applied it will be proven to be the correct rule, the rule for all of HIGH flyers don't get far; it is those who stay close to the earth and plod along, putting a little in the bank each week, that really get ahead. So don't fly high, but put some money in the bank.

pansion boom by measuring up to Atlanta in the future is the opinion of Mr. Edwards. He says if Macon had shown the business spirit in the last thirty years that it is showing now it would have outgrown Atlanta. Macon in the '30's, he says, was the most enterprising city in this section of the south. With 3,000 people or more it built the Central railroad and the first female college in the world.

"The capital of Georgia should be built in Macon of Georgia products—the marble, granite and brick from the rich mines of North Georgia, and the partition walls of the new Georgia kaolin product. It would then be a reversal of Grady's famous story of the man who died in North Georgia."

"That Atlanta needs some large and industrial denominational university, and that Macon can take the proper care of Mercer, is the opinion of Mr. Edwards.

"Let Atlanta, who wants to do something for education, buy the old capital building and use it for the basis of a Presbyterian university," he says. "The Presbyterians need a home in Atlanta, and Mercer would be let alone in Macon for Atlanta to do something for the thousands of students and their visiting friends who would be worth more for Atlanta than a legislature meeting periodically."

Even the most optimistic people among the agriculturists don't like this unseasonable warmth, for they point out that if it continues warm, and forces all the fruit and makes Georgia a midsummer Eden in April, the state will probably look like a parched and dry wilderness by the last hot day of August.

Whatever the result the weather is playing the queerest of pranks this year.
